This accessory includes three double-sided 21" x 30" tactical battle maps -- a total of six beautifully rendered encounter locations, each one suitable for any D&D game. Each map is laid out on a one-inch-scale square grid, allowing it to be used with D&D miniatures and/or card stock tokens.

Two of the mapped locations are new, depicting a dark cathedral and a haunted chapel with an adjoining cemetery. The remaining four map locations are picked up from out-of-print D&D products and present adventure locations tied to the "haunted temples" theme.

Six Maps, Great Value

By Andrew G Smith

For $10, I tacked this map-pack onto one of my other orders to get free shipping. I was really pleased to get 3 double-sided maps. These are like the ones you'd get in the full adventure supplements from WotC, not the patchwork-tile-image posters that often came in things like Encounters.

Nice product WotC. Keep these coming!

For Bonus Points, include a 24x36" top loader with your order (see link below). Slide these maps in, it'll keep them safe, hold em' flat, and you can use dry/wet erase markers on the plastic to make these paper maps editable but reusable.

Great maps, great value

By Michael Shea

Poster maps are the best value for good-looking encounter areas. They're easier to set up than dungeon tiles and have a lot more detail than something you'd draw out on your own. Once you build up a collection, you'll have maps for just about any major encounter area you can think of.

The map pack comes in a nice folder that you can re-use to keep your maps safe. It has four reprinted maps from Hellspike Prison, Thunderspire Labyrinth, Dragondown Grotto, and one other source. Two of them are brand new.

My only complaint is a lack of half-sized maps like those contained in the Monster Vault, Threats to the Nentyr Vale. Half-sized maps give you twice the encounter areas on the same paper and same ink.

I'd love to see a map pack containing four reprints and then eight half-sized encounter areas.

Anyway, for $9, this is a great reusable product with some excellent fantastic maps to use in your games.

NOT Tiles--Battlemaps

By bang

So, just got these puppies in the mail yesterday, so I haven't been able to actually use them in a game, but I must say, after opening the package and inspecting the elements, that this is the direction WotC should be going w/ their game supplements, in addition to the dungeon tile sets they have been publishing in the past. This product contains 3 dual-sided battlemaps with different styles of ruined/haunted temples printed on them. Pretty typical stuff here, and of course, as mentioned above, you can supplement this set with other dungeon-tile sets to make the maps more personalized.

PRO's--typically beautifully printed large, high-detail battlemaps. 7 maps in total (one is a smaller temple with a first and second story printed on the same side, with the longer map divided into two sections that are printed side by side). Cool and versatile set that can be used for many different situations and can be expanded with other tile sets easily.

CON's--printed on paper, so if you are not careful, the maps/mats can easily fold/bend/get-Mountain-Dew-spilled-on-them/etc., etc.. The durability is the real reason why I only give this set 4 stars. However, if you are careful and take care of the battlemaps, they should stand up to wear and tear reasonably well, and at $9.00, it's not a huge loss if they do get destroyed. Let's just hope WotC keeps this set in print so the cost doesn't skyrocket like older, OOP tile sets, right?
