Ten Stars for Ten on a Sled!

By J. Gilbert

I love this book. The illustrations are fabulous and make me smile every time I read the book. Ten arctic animals on a sled and, on a wild ride down the mountain, all fall off one by one, except one very big lonely caribou at the bottom of the hill. The big excitement is the piling back on for another wild toboggan ride (which prompts a mandatory read again, of course). Each picture has a story within the story and the expressions on the animals are wonderful. We try to recycle our children's books regularly by donating to local book sales...However, I'm planning on holding on to this one. Definitely a great holiday gift!

By Jennifer Osgood

Have the hard cover version of this and Love it. Ordered the board book for a baby shower gift and was so disappointed. It is NOT the full story and the condensed version completely misses the mark. Would have returned but it didn't seem worth the shipping costs.

Counting down

By LonestarReader

Patterned the preschool song "There Were Ten In The Bed", a group of 10 disparate animals pull a sled up a hill and take a wild ride down, falling off, one by one. This is a nice "count down" book with alliterative exits for each animal, the hare hopped off, the walrus whirled out, the sheep shot out, the wolf wiped out etc.

Liza Woodruff has suggested the Northern Lights in the sky on the cover as Norman sets the story "on a sunlit night, 'neath a snowy moon."
