Excellent coverage of the Armenian genocide issue and recovery efforts

By Dr. Eisenach

An excellent book written by Prof. Stanly Kerr, Ph.D. who had an intimate knowledge of the horrors against the Christian population of Anatolia, Turkey (largely the area of Cilicia) comprising mainly ethnic Armenian, but also Assyrian, Greek, and Arab Christians starting in April 1915 and running into 1920 and a bit beyond.

Those Christians who were pressured into the religion developed by Mohammed were largely spared. Dr. Kerr headed the Near East Relief efforts and later was a professor at the near by American Univ. of Beirut (Lebanon) and developed close contacts with survivors of this first genocide of the 20th century. The contents of the book were validated by my wife's uncle, Dicran Berberian, M.D. of Albany, NY.

I purchased and read the book back in 1973 and again this season.

Marash and the suffering of the Armenian people

By kevork krozian

The narrative is close to my heart as my grandfather was an orphan from Marash . A beautiful, honest and sensitive portrayal of the genocide of an ancient people

Soon to Read

By U. S. 'n Aye

Well, I haven't read it yet but I was led to it by my interest in interviewing Steve Kerr, Coach of the NBA Champion Golden State Warriors basketball team. Stanley Kerr was the grandfather of Coach Kerr. Coach

Kerr's father was gunned down in Beirut. Interestingly I have a special interest in the Armenians, as shown on my web site <http://ralef.com/Haig>
So much looking forward to reading this and finding out more of the story of both the Armenians and the saga of this amazing American family.
